

Computer Guidelines

The Marshall Hamilton Library adheres to the NFCC Acceptable Technology Use Policy and the additional guidelines as follows:

- The computers in the library are available to NFCC students, faculty, staff and community patrons. The primary purpose of these computers is for accessing electronic resources for information and research. Priority is given to users who are using the computers for classroom assignments and research. Community patrons and students who are not using the computers for school use may be asked to relinquish the computer.
- The Children's Internet Protection Act of 2000 requires libraries to install filtering software if computers are available to children. Since computers in the NFCC library do not have appropriate filtering software, community patrons under 18 years of age are not legally allowed to use the computers.
